

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A method of performing a design rule check on an integrated circuit includes tagging at least one line in a schematic with a width marker and an associated width parameter, extracting the line width marker and the associated line width parameter, comparing the extracted line width parameter with an actual design width for a design line, and generating an error condition when the actual design line width is less than the line width parameter.